18 INTRODUCTION

19 The defendant is set for trial beginning June 30, 2008. Pursuant to Federal Rule of 20 Evidence 615 and this Court's inherent power, he hereby moves the Court to: (1) exclude all 21 government witnesses not exempt under Federal Rule of Evidence 615 from the courtroom 22 during witness testimony, evidentiary hearings, opening statements and closing arguments; and 23 (2) admonish all witnesses not to discuss the case or what their testimony has been or would be 24 or what occurs in the courtroom with anyone other than counsel for either side during the course 25 of trial.

2 DISCUSSION3 I. The Defendant Is Entitled to Exclusion of Government Witnesses

4 Federal Rule of Evidence 615 provides that “[a]t the request of a party the court shall 5 order witnesses excluded so that they cannot hear the testimony of other witnesses.” Rule 615 is 6 intended to ensure a fair trial by preventing collusion of witnesses and fabrication of testimony, 7 and by helping reveal instances where such fabrication or collusion actually occurs. See Geders
 8 v. United States, 425 U.S. 80, 87 (1976) (observing that the rule “exercises a restraint of 9 witnesses ‘tailoring’ their testimony to that of earlier witnesses; and it aids in detecting testimony
 10 that is less than candid”); see also Taylor v. United States, 388 F.2d 786, 788 (9th Cir. 1967) 11 (stating that exclusion is designed to “prevent the shaping of testimony by hearing what other 12 witnesses say”).

13 Rule 615 makes the exclusion of witnesses mandatory upon request. In fact, the Ninth 14 Circuit has referred to witness exclusion as a “right.” See United States v. Ell, 718 F.2d 291, 292
 15 (9th Cir. 1983) (“The rule makes the exclusion of witnesses a matter of right and the decision is 16 no longer committed to the court's discretion as it once was.” (citing Fed. R. Evid. 615 Advisory 17 Committee’s note)); United States v. Brewer, 947 F.2d 404, 407-11 (9th Cir. 1991) (“The use of 18 the word ‘shall’ makes it clear that a district court must comply with a request for exclusion.”).
 19 Thus, the Court should grant the defendant request for exclusion of government witnesses.

20 II. Witnesses Should be Excluded During Motion Hearings, Opening Statements, and 21 Closing Arguments, As Well As During Witness Testimony

22 Rule 615 requires that non-exempt witnesses be excluded from the courtroom during all 23 witness testimony; that is, that they should remain excluded even after testifying. See Fed. R.
 24 Evid. 615; see also Ell, 718 F.2d at 293 (holding that trial court erred by not excluding 25 prosecution witness who had already testified, and noting that the dangers against which Rule 26 615 is designed to protect are present when witnesses are only partially excluded since “a rebuttal

1 witness who has already testified . . . may wish to tailor rebuttal testimony [and]. . . cover up
2 inconsistencies in earlier testimony”).

3       There is also substantial authority stating that under Rule 615, or through an exercise of a 4 court’s inherent powers, it is proper to extend the period of exclusion in order to promote a fair
5 trial. See United States v. Sepulveda, 15 F.3d 1161, 1175-77 (1st Cir. 1993) (holding that in 6 addition to the power to exclude under Rule 615 a district court retains inherent power to, “make 7 whatever provisions it deems necessary to manage trials, . . . including the sequestration of 8 witnesses before, during and after their testimony” (citing Geders, 425 U.S. at 87)) (emphasis 9 added); Brewer, 947 F.2d at 407-11 (holding that witness exclusion under Rule 615 applies
10 during evidentiary hearings, such as those in a motion to suppress); United States v. Juarez, 573 11 F.2d 267, 281 (5th Cir. 1978) (affirming trial court’s decision to exclude defendant’s witnesses 12 from closing arguments “[b]ecause closing arguments of counsel often restate witness testimony, 13 . . . thus jeopardizing the fairness of a second trial should one be necessary”); see also 4 14 Weinstein’s Federal Evidence § 615.02[2][a] (Matthew Bender 2d ed. 2000) (“The customary 15 practice is to exercise discretion to exclude prospective witnesses during openings and any 16 arguments or offers of proof when a witness’s testimony may be summarized.”).

17       Because the truthfulness of witness testimony and the ability to detect fabricated
18 testimony is best achieved through a comprehensive exclusion order, this Court should extend 19 the scope of its order to cover opening and closing arguments, as well as hearings for pretrial 20 motions.

21 III. Only Witnesses Specifically Exempted Under Rule 615 Should Be Permitted to 22 Remain in the Courtroom

23       Pursuant to Rule 615, only four categories of witnesses are not subject to the full scope of 24 a court’s exclusion order. See Fed. R. Evid. 615 (1)-(4) (exempting: (1) a party who is a natural 25 person; (2) a designated representative of a party who is not a natural person; (3) persons 26 essential to the presentation of a party’s case; and (4) persons authorized by statute to be

1 present). Each government witness must be excluded unless the government demonstrates that 2 the witness falls within one of the designated exceptions. See United States v. Jackson, 60 F.3d
 3 128, 135 (2d Cir. 1995) (noting that Rule 615 carries a strong presumption in favor of exclusion
 4 and that the party opposing exclusion “has the burden of demonstrating why the pertinent Rule 5 615 exception applies”). The Court should order that only witnesses specifically exempted under 6 Rule 615 should be permitted to remain in the courtroom.

7 A. No more than one “case agent” should be designated as the government’s 8 representative under Rule 615(2)

9 A federal agent, or a local law enforcement officer working with federal agents, qualifies 10 for exemption from an exclusion order under Rule 615(2). See Fed. R. Evid. 615(2); see also 11 United States v. Thomas, 835 F.2d 219, 222-23 (9th Cir. 1987) (trial court did not err in allowing 12 FBI agent who also testified to sit at counsel table throughout trial, since agent qualified as 13 officer representing the government). The plain language of Federal Rule of Evidence 615(2), 14 however, as well as the notes of the Advisory Committee, indicate that only one agent can be 15 exempted under this provision.

16 The rule speaks of an officer or employee of a party who is not a natural person being 17 designated as “its representative.” Fed. R. Evid. 615(2). The drafters chose the singular, rather 18 than the plural, not speaking of an entity’s right to designate “its representatives.” As the Sixth 19 Circuit has observed, “[a] representative, like ‘a’ natural person, . . . and ‘an’ officer or 20 employee, is singular. . . we can discern no reason to convert the singular into the plural.” United 21 States v. Pulley, 922 F.2d 1283, 1286 (6th Cir. 1991).

22 The majority of circuit courts that have addressed the issue of multiple witness-23 representatives have concluded that only one agent, officer or employee should be designated 24 under Rule 615(2). See id.; United States v. Farnham, 791 F.2d 331, 334-35 (4th Cir. 1986) 25 (holding that trial court’s decision to allow two government agent-witnesses to remain in 26 courtroom throughout trial was error); see also United States v. Causey, 609 F.2d 777, 777-78

(5th Cir. 1980) (not reaching the issue, but stating in dicta, “from its language it would reasonably be argued that [Rule 615(2)] does not grant counsel for a party the right to designate more than one representative.”); Oliver B. Cannon and Son v. Fidelity and Cas. Co., 519 F. Supp. 668, 679 (D. Del. 1981) (exception codified in Rule 615(2) held to be singular, thus plaintiff was unable to appoint more than one person as representative).

Accordingly, the Court should permit no more than one “case agent” to be designated as the government’s representative under Rule 615(2).

B. Witnesses deemed “essential” under Rule 615(3) should only be permitted to remain in the courtroom insofar as their presence is required

Rule 615(3) permits a person, such as an expert witness, “whose presence is shown by a party to be essential to the presentation of the party’s cause,” to remain in court despite the issuance of an exclusion order. Fed. R. Evid. 615(3). The government, however, bears the burden of showing that a witness “has such specialized expertise or intimate knowledge of the facts of the case that a party’s attorney could not effectively function without the presence and aid of the witness or that the witness would be unable to present essential testimony without hearing the trial testimony of other witnesses.” Oliver B. Cannon, 519 F. Supp. at 678; see also United States v. Agnes, 753 F.2d 293, 306 (3d Cir. 1985) (exclusion of witness proper where defendant seeking exemption under Rule 615(3) failed to sustain burden of proof articulated in Oliver B. Cannon).

It is within the sound discretion of the district court to determine whether a witness qualifies as “essential.” See id. However, the district court should only permit witnesses qualifying under Rule 615(3) to remain in court insofar as their presence is required; that is, essential witnesses should only be granted a limited exception from the court’s exclusion order. See, e.g., United States v. Phillips, 515 F. Supp. 758, 761 (E.D. Ky. 1981) (psychiatric expert essential to preparation of prosecutor’s cross-examination of defense expert granted limited exemption from exclusion order; witness permitted to remain in court only to assist prosecutor

1 during testimony of defense expert). Therefore, any government witness deemed by the Court to 2 be essential should be permitted to remain in the courtroom only during the presentation of 3 evidence related to his or her area of expertise.

4 IV. Witnesses Should Be Directed Not to Read Trial Transcripts or Discuss the Case or 5 Their Testimony With Anyone Other than Counsel

6 Rule 615 does not provide clear guidance as to what instructions should be given to 7 excluded witnesses. Numerous courts, however, have acknowledged that in order to achieve the 8 purposes of Rule 615, the district court must direct excluded witnesses not to discuss the case or 9 their testimony with anyone other than counsel. The Tenth Circuit has gone so far as to say that 10 failure to instruct the witnesses about the scope and importance of an exclusion order may 11 warrant reversal on appeal. See United States v. Buchanan, 787 F.2d 477, 484-485 (10th Cir.
 12 1986) (“The witnesses should be clearly directed, when the Rule is invoked, that they must all 13 leave the courtroom (with the exceptions the Rule permits), and that they are not to discuss the 14 case or what their testimony has been or would be or what occurs in the courtroom with anyone
 15 other than counsel for either side.”); see also Perry v. Leeke, 488 U.S. 272, 279 (1989) (“It is a 16 common practice for a judge to instruct a witness not to discuss his or her testimony with third 17 parties until the trial is completed.”); United States v. Walker, 613 F.2d 1349, 1354 (5th Cir.
 18 1980) (“Sequestration requires that witnesses not discuss the case among themselves or anyone 19 else, other than the counsel for the parties.”).

20 The First Circuit has made it clear that parties seeking safeguards against witness 21 corruption or collaboration should make express requests regarding the scope of the exclusion 22 order. See Sepulveda, 15 F.3d at 1177. Significantly, the Court in Sepulveda observed that 23 district courts should usually grant such requests when they involve restraints on communication 24 between witnesses. See id. at 1176 (“[D]istrict courts routinely exercise their discretion to 25 augment Rule 615 by instructing witnesses . . . that they are not to discuss their testimony.
 26 Indeed, such non-discussion orders are generally thought to be a standard concomitant of basic

1 sequestration fare, serving to fortify the protections offered by Rule 615.”)

2       Following the same rationale, several Circuits have held that reading of trial transcripts
3 also violates the purpose of Rule 615. See Miller v. Universal City Studios, Inc., 650 F.2d 1365,
4 1373 (5th Cir. 1981) (“The opportunity to shape testimony is as great with a witness who reads
5 trial testimony as with one who hears the testimony in open court. The harm may be even more 6 pronounced . . . , because the [witness] need not rely on his memory of the testimony but can 7 thoroughly review and study the transcript in formulating his own testimony.”); see also United 8 States v. Rhynes, 206 F.3d 349, 370 (4th Cir. 1999) (stating that trial judges should be “alert to 9 the myriad ways in which individuals may attempt to circumvent sequestration orders”).

10       Finally, witnesses who fall under one of the Rule 615 exceptions should also be directed 11 not to speak with anyone other than counsel about the case. See United States v. Butera, 677 12 F.2d 1376, 1380-81 (11th Cir. 1982) (holding that an undercover agent designated as 13 government’s representative, and therefore exempt under Rule 615(2), was nevertheless properly 14 directed not to discuss the case with other witnesses).

15       Thus, the Court should order that government witnesses not read trial transcripts or 16 discuss the case or their testimony with anyone other than government counsel.

17 CONCLUSION

18       For the foregoing reasons, the defendant respectfully moves the Court to enter an order 19 directing that government witnesses be (1) excluded from the courtroom unless they are 20 testifying, (2) sequestered from one another, and (3) prohibited from reading trial transcripts or 21 discussing their testimony with anyone other than counsel. Additionally, the Court should limit
